CRITICAL NOTES

[ These Critical Notes cover observations and explanations on the Constituted Text. Exegetical notes figure but occasionally as the constituted Text of the Rāmāyaṇa is quite smooth and easy, and the object of such notes is to help the reader. They are generally put at places where he may regard the Text rather out of the way in adopting a particular reading. Additions to and corrections in the Text and Critical Apparatus are put in square brackets. SR and NR represent the two major recensions generally but sometimes include allied versions.]

1-14—The question of the transpositions of some of these stanzas in SR has been fully discussed in the Introduction (p. xx). There are two explanations possible for this transposition: one is that both Bāla and Ayodhyā at one time formed one Kāṇḍa as is evidenced by some MSS. like D<sub>1</sub> that we have actually used; and the other is that a folio of a small MS. might have been inadvertently misplaced in very early times. That is why some stanzas were transposed, viz., sts. 1-4 or 5 and sts. 11-14 in D<sub>g</sub> T<sub>1</sub> G and M<sub>1</sub>-3.

9<sup>cd</sup>) Note that there is an attempt in D<sub>6</sub> and some MSS. of Ñ V B group to make Rāma an amśavatāra of Viṣṇu.

10, 10* lines 1-2. It is here that the poem foretells the purpose of the Rāmāvatāra. Note also that these two lines have no support from NR.

29, 20* Note how the different lines of this passage are distributed in different MSS. The contents relate to the qualities of Rāma, which are all covered by our text. Compare in this context the contents of 14*, 15* and 19*.

34, 27* Note the complex character of this passage which must have been first introduced in SR and then penetrated into NW. The three lines of 27* which are found in some MSS. of NR merely expand the idea on account of its contact with SR.

35, 29* and 29(A)*. These two passages are peculiar to NW version and have no support of SR.

36, 31*. Note that this passage also is found exclusively in NW version without any support from SR.

4 पूर्वैः पन्थानमनुगच्छता, i.e., पूर्वेषां पन्थानमनुगच्छता. The use of the Instrumental case is peculiar here, and might be due to the influence of the same expression in st. 3 above. The variant पूर्व which is not well-supported, is an attempt to improve the phrase grammatically.

12, 35* अन्या मध्यस्थचिन्ता तु विमर्दाभ्यधिकोदया, is a pure S insertion. What Daśaratha wants to say is that his own view on the coronation of Rāma may be due to his own partiality for his son, while members of the assembly may think dispassionately in the matter, and, after deliberations, may even suggest a still better course. Note Cg and Ct on the passage: विमर्देन पूर्वापरपक्षसंघर्षेण हेतुना अभ्यधिकोदया अधिकार्थप्रादुर्भावा.

It appears to me that the argument in the phrase is so loaded that it surely is of late origin influenced by Māgha's Śiśupālavadha, canto 2, and as such abnormal in the Ādikāvya.

1, (App. 1, No. 5). This additional passage is peculiar and found in D<sub>1</sub> and D<sub>6</sub> only, and is an expansion of ideas already detailed. The passage has no support from the rest of the MSS. Of these two MSS., D<sub>6</sub> has only 20 lines common with D<sub>1</sub>.

11-13, 71*, 72* and 73*. Note that these passages are found only in D<sub>1</sub>-4.7 and have no support of the rest of the MSS.

27 परोक्षया वर्तमानो वृत्त्या प्रत्यक्षया तथा—Note Ct: परोक्षया चारमुखतः परोक्षानुभवसिद्धया वृत्त्या स्वपरराष्ट्रवृत्तान्तविचारेण। प्रत्यक्षया सदा सभायां स्थित्वा प्रजान्यायादिविचारेण; Cg: अप्रत्यक्षया वृत्त्या तक्ष-प्रभृतिकर्मान्तिकानां परोक्षो भूत्वा अधिकजमुखेन यत्कार्याणि संनिधत्ते, सा परोक्षवृत्तिः। अव्यवधानेन अमात्यादीन् यथा वृत्त्यानुगृह्णाति, सा प्रत्यक्ष-वृत्तिः।

19-20 The reason for immediate coronation of Rāma as indicated here is that stars do not seem to be favourable to Daśaratha, and even suggest calamities like death or change of mind. The good and auspicious idea in the mind of Daśaratha, therefore, requires to be put into action immediately.

25-27 These stanzas indicate that Daśaratha desired Rāma's coronation even in the absence of Bharata, even though, as he knew, Bharata was well-disposed to Rāma.

3, 94*—This passage is found in all our MSS. except D1-4 (N1 T1 missing), and being a repetition, is excluded from the Constituted Text.

15, 108* ग्रन्थाः or गाथाः are compositions or recitation of songs.

18 दीपवृक्षान्, lamps hanging on trees.

22 वृष्टलोकपरावरः—Cg : वृष्टे ये लोके परावरे उत्कृष्टापकृष्टवरतुनी येन; Ct : यथावगततत्तज्जनप्राशस्त्यप्राशस्त्यः, one who knows the ins and outs of people.

4 अर्थपरा,—Ct : स्वेष्टार्थपरा. Cg construes the phrase differently as an adjective, not of Mantharā, but of Kausalyā : अर्थपरा सती अर्थपरा सत्यपि । ...यद्वा । उत्तरोत्तरार्थाभिवृद्धये धनं प्रयच्छति किम् । नामग्रहणस्यासह्यत्वाद्दाममातेत्युक्तिः. It appears that Mantharā regarded Kausalyā, compared with her mistress Kaikeyī, to be miserly or greedy and not bent on spending. She would not mention the name Kausalyā as she hated her, being Kaikeyī's co-wife.

6 कुञ्जा is the name of a class of maid-servants, and does not necessarily relate to the personal deformity so much of Mantharā, though she had a lump of flesh on her chest. Compare 2.9. 28 and 30 and the description of her person there.

19 उग्रत्वं राजधर्माणाम्. Ct : सापलो हि सः । राज्यशमे त्वं त्वत्पुत्रं च नाशयिष्यतीति भावः.

23 शत्रुः पतिप्रवादेन, an enemy in reality, and husband in name. Cg : पतिप्रवादेन पतिव्यपदेशेन.

5 रामस्य परमाः स्त्रियः. Much has been made in some quarters of the plural स्त्रियः, which is interpreted by them that Rāma had more than one wife. The correct interpretation of the passage is that it refers to ladies in general, and not necessarily wives, that were dear to Rāma such as Kausalyā, Sumitrā and even Kaikeyī.

26 दर्पाभिराकृता पूर्वं...राममाता । It appears that Kaikeyī in her youth insulted Kausalyā who, as soon as Rāma becomes king, would take revenge on Kaikeyī. Compare in this context 2.17.22-25, and particularly न दृष्टपूर्वं कल्याणं सुखं वा पतिपौरुषे and त्वयि संनिहितेव्येवमहमासं निराकृता.

4 रामार्थमुपहिंसन्ती. Cg : रामार्थं रामान्निषेकरूपं प्रयोजनम्. Compare st. 8 below.

9 देवराजस्य साहचर्यम्. The word साह्य means साहाय्य. The word is grammatically incorrect, but may be explained as सहभावः, association.

10 दक्षिणां दण्डकान्प्रति. The acquaintance that Kaikeyī had of the southern region of the Daṇḍaka forest on this occasion seems to have suggested to her that Rāma should be exiled there. The period of exile, viz., 14 years, instead of 12 years as in the MBh. may be a matter of accident. At any rate, I have no explanation to offer why Kaikeyī should mention this figure. Perhaps she thought that after all Rāma might not return to Ayodhyā or survive this period.

29 नाहं समवबुध्येयम्. Ct notes here an additional passage not recorded by any of our MSS., and it runs as follows :

न हि तद्वबुधे पापं शापदोषेण मोहिता ।

केकयेषु हि सा बाल्ये ब्राह्मणं रुक्षरूपिणम् ।

अमृषितवती बाला तेन शप्ता महात्मना ।

यसादमृत्युने विप्रं त्वं रूपमददर्शिता ।

तस्मादमृत्यां त्वमपि लोके प्राप्स्यसि कुत्सितान् ।

इति शापसमाच्छिन्ना मन्थरावशमागता ।

All this is clearly an after-thought which Nāgārāja perhaps found in later recensions of the Rāma story.

10

16 The first half of this stanza has been taken from NR. The contents are supported by 197* and 204*.

21 The reading क्रमेण is supported by SR and means पादेन.

27-28. These two stanzas state the objective of Kaikeyī in clear terms, and st. 29 its immediate fulfilment.

11

1 ययातिमिव पुण्यान्ते देवलोकान्प्रिच्युतम्. The reference seems to be to the latter life of Yayāti as recorded in the MBh. 1. 81-88 and more particularly to 1.81.3:

स गतः सुखवासं तं निवसन्मुदितः सुखम् ।
कालस्य नातिमहतः पुनः शक्रेण पातितः ।

12

4 This refers to the well-known story, recorded in Hindu and Buddhist works, of Śibi Auśīnara, who, after promising protection to a pigeon, had to offer his flesh to a hawk. The next stanza refers to a similar story of Alarka who offered his eyes to a learned Brahmin. The reason of quoting these stories is to remind Daśaratha that he must also honour his word.

13

10 औपवाहः, Cg : राजवाहः.

24 आत्माधिकारः, relating to his own self. compare आत्मसंपूजनीः in 2.15.9.

15

6 उत्कान्तमृषिम्. A sage never tells a lie, but if he does, he becomes perturbed as king Daśaratha was.

16

19 रामो द्विर्नाभिभाषते, Rāma does not vary his word or promise; in other words, Rāma is एकवचन or सत्यवाक्.

33 Here Rāma declares his firm resolve to sacrifice everything dear to him for Bharata to please his father or mother. Compare:

सेहं दयां च सौख्यं च यदि वा जानकीमपि ।
आराधनाय लोकस्य मुञ्चतो नास्ति मे व्यथा ।

URC 1.12

In this book we meet similar expressions several times.

17

26 दश सप्त च वर्षाणि तव जातस्य राघव. The passage states that Rāma was just 17 years of age when he was to be crowned or exiled.

18

11 454* lines 3 and 4. This is a citation occurring in the MBh. and even in some Smṛtis. The expression अवलिप्तस्य does not suit the context here though कार्याकार्यमजानतः does.

23 अहं प्रायमिहासिष्ये. Kausalyā threatens to go on a sort of hunger-strike in case Rāma leaves for forest. The practice of prāyopaveśana or hunger-strike to achieve one's objectives seems to be common from very early times. We have in this very book another instance of such a hunger-strike in 2.103.13-15 where Bharata administers to Rāma a similar threat to persuade him to return to Ayodhyā to rule. Rāma points out to Bharata there that only the Brahmin class was permitted to resort to this practice and not the warrior-class: न तु मूर्धावसिक्तानां विधिः प्रत्युपवेशने in 2.103.17.

26 नास्ति शक्तिः विदुर्वच्यं समतिक्रमिषुं मम. Rāma says here that he cannot disobey his father's command even though it might be improper. In support, he quotes the cases of a sage Kaṇḍu, Sagara's sons and also of Jāmadagnya Rāma.

19

3. 484*, lines 3 and 4. The entire * passage is inserted as an explanation of st. 3 which states that Rāma desires to dispense with the paraphernalia of coronation, as otherwise Kaikeyī may not take his word seriously. This * passage is found only in SR, and, according to Uḍāri, this text should be changed like this: The lines 1-4 of 484* should be followed by st. 3. The MSS. of SR that have come down to us do not support Uḍāri's view: विपर्ययस्तु लेखकप्रमादकृतः.

22

Pages 143 and 144 give a conspectus of sequence of the stanzas as found in NR. This indicates that the text-tradition in NR differs widely from that in SR which maintains the order uniformly. This is a clear proof that the versions of NR have not preserved the genuine order of the text-tradition here. Note also that D1 here supports SR.

14 पुष्यरथ is a chariot drawn by eight horses and bedecked with gold and gems. This type of chariot is used in processions as an embellishment. Cg : पुष्यरथः उत्सवाय कल्पितो रथः. Ct reads पुष्यरथः and explains the term : लीलागमनप्रयोजनो रथः, न तु युद्धार्थ इत्यर्थः । तादृशमथो निजिगमिषो राज्ञोऽप्ये गच्छति । तस्मिन् सत्यामिच्छायामगच्छति, नो चेदग्नौ गच्छति.

5 अग्रतस्ते गमिष्यामि मृदन्ती कुशकण्टकान्. Sītā offers to go in front of Rāma, crushing the prickly ends of Kuśa grass (with her tender feet) so that her husband's feet may not be hurt. What she wants to convey to Rāma is that she is not afraid of the difficulties of forest-life; on the contrary, she would be of great help to him in relieving him of many a hardship he would be subjected to.

7 सर्वाविस्थागता भर्तुः पादच्छाया विशिष्यते. Ct : 'विष्णोरभक्ति-कावस्था सर्वावस्थेति गीयते' इत्यभिधानात्. तां गतस्य आ ईषद्भुवः । भर्तुरित्यन्तमेकं पदम् । अथवा पृथक्पदे । ह्युक्त्यर्थमननुष्ठानरूपां तां गतापीति योजना । सकलभर्तुधर्मैरहितस्यापि पत्युः पादच्छाया पादसेवनमेव इतरथमापेक्षया स्त्रिया विशिष्यते अधिकं भवति । छुतिस्मृतयोः सर्वपरित्यागेन भर्तुसेवाया एव स्त्रीणां नित्यत्वबोधनादिति भावः ।

8 Sītā goes further and tells Rāma that she had been well-instructed by her parents how she should conduct herself in various situations.

4 अश्वपतेः सुता = कैकेयी.

7 यस्याः सहस्रं ग्रामाणां संप्राप्तमुपजीवनम्. Kausalyā was given an allowance of the income from a thousand villages for her maintenance by Daśaratha on his marriage with Kaikeyī as she was अधिविज्ञा.

29

22-27 This is a short interlude of Trijaṭa Gārgya, a funny ascetic, who desired to have a share in Rāma's distribution of his property, and is probably introduced here by the poet to relieve the mental tension of his readers.

30

10 सत्त्वमाविश्य भाषते. Daśaratha is speaking to-day as if he is possessed by a ghost. The use of आविश्य does not strictly conform to rules of Pāṇini. The subst. * passages 785* or 786* seem to rectify the language by stating अन्येन सत्त्वेनाविष्टचेतनः or यदि हि स्यादनाविष्टः सत्त्वेनान्येन.

31

25 न मे कार्यं त्वयानृत्तम्. I should not turn you into a liar.

35

33-34 These two stanzas raise an interesting ethical question. The situation is that Rāma sat in the chariot and is about to leave for the forest. Daśaratha, to have a last look as it were of Rāma, orders Sumantra, the charioteer, to stop the chariot and not to proceed, while Rāma asks him not to stop, i.e., not to obey Daśaratha's command to stop. Sumantra, naturally, was in a fix whether he should obey the king or Rāma. Secondly, Rāma tells Sumantra that he should tell a lie to Daśaratha that he did not hear his word if, on his return, the king took him to task. The reason for this advice to Sumantra as given by Rāma is that in case Daśaratha remains in that sad plight longer, it would be more painful to him and to all, and hence disobedience and consequent lie is justifiable under the circumstances.

The question to be now considered is whether Rāma who is traditionally known as the champion of absolute truth, should or can advise Sumantra to tell a deliberate lie. The problem of Truth and Falsehood is discussed in a number of places in the MBh., e.g., 12.110.4-20 and the conclusion arrived at seems to be that falsehood is not falsehood under certain circumstances.

चक्रयोरिव चान्तरा—Cg : चक्रयोरन्तरेव रथपूर्वपश्चाद्भागस्थितयो-श्चक्रयोरन्तरेऽधगतः पुरुष इव. Ct : चक्रयोर्युयुत्सुसेनयोरन्तरा स्थित उदासीनः पुरुष इव सुमन्त्रस्यात्मा दोलायितो बभूव. Cg : राजवचनानि-क्रमणे महान्दोषो भविष्यतीत्याशङ्कयामाह—नाश्रौपमिति । पुनरागमना-नन्तरं राज्ञा किमर्थं मद्भाष्ये न स्थितोऽसीति निन्दितोऽपि नाश्रौपं स्वद्वचन-मिति बध्यसि । किमर्थमेवमसत्यवचनं तत्राह—चिरमिति । दुःखस्य श्दार्ता-मनुभूयमानदुःखस्य चिरं विलम्बः पापिष्ठमतिदुःसहमित्यर्थः.

19 अपह्लातः. Ct : मृतहानह्लातः. Cg : अरिष्टमशुभम्.

40

20-22 वाजपेयसमुत्थानि च्छत्राणि and वाजपेयिकैः. The priests taking part in the performance of Vājapeya are allowed to wear white umbrellas which, normally, are permitted for kings only. Rāma having resigned his claim to kingship, is being offered white umbrellas by Brahmins following him, which they had acquired on their performing Vājaperya. Cg : वाजपेय-समुत्थानि वाजपेयानुष्ठानसंभृतानि ।...वाजपेयिकैः वाजपेयप्राप्तैः । “याव-ज्जीवं न कंचन प्रत्यवरोहेत् । बृहस्पतिसत्त्वेन वा प्रत्यवरोहणीयेन दजेत । श्वेतच्छत्री भवतीति विज्ञायते” इति वाजपेययाजिनां श्वेतच्छत्रधारण-विधानात्. Ct : वाजपेययाजिनो राजवच्छत्रा देसवन्धस्य श्रुतावुक्तेः (cf. आप. श्रौ. सू. १८.७.१८; सत्यापाद श्रौ. सू. १३.२.४२).

24 मोहनार्थं तु पौराणम्. This is another instance of Rāma practising a sort of trick. This type of behaviour is justifiable and is justified by Rāma himself in st. 21 above :

पौरा ब्राह्मकृताद्वादिप्रमोच्या नृपात्मजैः ।
न तु खल्वात्मना योज्या दुःखेन पुरवासिनः ॥

42

8-16 Note that SR maintains a uniform order of stanzas, which differs considerably in NW, NE and W versions. M<sub>4</sub> has its sequence disturbed, but it relates to only three stanzas.

8 The course of Rāma's journey, after the crossing of the river Tamasā was, first northwards, and after crossing the river Vedaśruti towards the south. The river Gomati was crossed next and then the Śyandikā. It is at Śṛṅgavera that he first saw the swift current of the waters of the Gaṅgā.

9 सपतिः = निपादाधिपतिः.

19 न हि वर्ते प्रतिग्रहे. I cannot accept gifts or presents, and I live on fruits and roots.

66 शुभस्यवेगाभिहता. Sphya is found in ritualistic literature as the name of an implement to scrape the sacrificial ground. As the shape of an oar is similar to that implement, the oar is also called sphya.

79 Our text states that Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa killed four animals, while some MSS. of NR say that they killed only one spotted deer.

48

25 दशक्रोश इतस्तात गिरिः. The mount Citrakūṭa is here stated to be about 10 krośas or 20 miles to the south-east of Prayāga.

49

11 अंशुमती, i.e. यमुनाम्. Probably because the river in our mythology was the daughter of अंशुमत्, the sun. The form अंशुमती is somewhat ungrammatical; अंशुमती is still more so.

50

12, 1200*. This passage is found only in SR. The reference to Vālmiki therein is certainly absurd, and the passage 1200 (A)* is still more so.

13, 1201* and 1202*. These passages indicate that two separate huts were constructed, one for Rāma and Sītā, and the other for Lakṣmaṇa. SR seems to suggest that they constructed only one hut (पर्णशालाम्).

15 शालां यक्ष्यामहे, let us perform a sacrifice for warming the house.

22 माल्यवती is otherwise called मन्दाकिनी.

56

2 This refers to the episode detailed in the next Sarga.

57

8 लब्धशब्देन कुमारेण etc. When I was young and already earned reputation that I hit an object merely on hearing its sound.

11 परेताचरितां दिशम्, i.e., south.

19 उदाहारो i.e., to fetch water.

25 सर्वे, all the three, viz., himself and his blind parents.

33 अशक्तिरपरिक्रमः, weak and unable to walk.

35 एकपदी. Cg : एकपदन्यासमात्रयुक्ता सरणिः, a track so narrow that one can cover it with one step only.

37 न द्विजातिरहं etc. The young ascetic hit by the arrow of Daśaratha states that he is not a Brahmin. He was the son of the mother belonging to the śūdra caste and of the father belonging to the merchant caste. The old couple, blind on account of age, retired to a forest, built a sort of hermitage, and, with the help of their son, led a quiet life of ascetics.

15 निःसृष्टोऽम्बसि नाराचः. I discharged my arrow in the direction of water. Note the unusual use of locative case to indicate direction.

21 अपि ह्यथ कुलं न स्याद्वाचवर्णां कुतो भवान्. As stated in st. 20 above, that if a Kṣatriya consciously attempts to kill an ascetic, the act would remove Indra from his heavenly kingdom. This act of Daśaratha would have ruined the entire race of Raghus, not to speak of a single member like Daśaratha.

13 संकलनं or संकालनं means प्रेतनिर्हारः according to Ct or संस्कारः according to Cg. Elsewhere the term संकलन figures associated with अस्थि when it means collection of bones of the dead. This meaning, of course, is not applicable in the present context.

61

1 राजकर्तारः, Officers of the King, courtiers.

7 अराजकं हि नो राष्ट्रम्. The condition of a kingless state is described here in sts. 8-23. Similar description of a kingless state is found also in the MBh. 12-67.

18 यत्र सायं गृहो मुनिः. A wandering ascetic does not build a hermitage and halts for the night anywhere at nightfall. In a kingless state, this sort of practice is unsafe and impossible.

21 मत्स्या इव नरा नित्यं भक्षयन्ति परस्परम्. The MBh. expression in 12. 67. 16 is शूले मत्स्यानिवापक्ष्यन् which is identical with Manu. 7.20. This is usually known as मत्स्यन्याय, where the weak are overpowered by the strong. Cf. Kauṭilya Artha. 1.4 and 1.13.

62

7 आत्ययिकम्, urgent. Cg: अत्ययः कालानिपातः, तं प्राप्त-मात्ययिकम्। विनयादिभ्यश्चक्र। ...यद्वा। अत्ययः कृच्छ्रम्। तत्रभवमात्य-यिकम्.

13 अभिकालं ततः प्राप्य तेजोभिभवनाच्युताः. Here SR does not give a uniform text. We have a reading from Ct which explains: अभिकालतेजोभिभवनौ ग्रामौ; Cg, however, adopts a different reading for <sup>6</sup> and explains: अभिकालं तदाख्यग्रामम्। कुलिङ्गासाहचर्यात् बोधिभवनात्तदाख्यातवन्तात्। नदीमूललोकेः.

63

2 व्युद्यमेव तु तां रात्रिम्. Bharata saw a dream when the night was about to be turned into dawn. There is a general belief that dreams seen at dawn come out to be true.

14 प्रयातो दक्षिणामुखः. King Daśaratha was seen in the dream to proceed south-wards, indicating his death.

64

9 आत्मकामा सदा चण्डी. This is Bharata's view about his mother, which is quite pertinent in the present context.

20 ऐन्द्रशिरान्, belonging to the region इन्द्रशिर, a mount which was a famous source of good elephants. It appears that the Kekaya country was rich in elephants, horses, camels, mules and dogs of excellent breed, as these animals are included in the gifts to Bharata.

65

1 Bharata's return journey has been fully detailed in the Introduction, p. XXVI. It seems now somewhat difficult to identify the places mentioned. The commentators, particularly those from the South, are unable to present a uniform text, and explain names differently, particularly the expression शिलामाकुर्वतीन्, which is explained by a majority of them as शिलामासमन्ताकुर्वतीन्, शिलार्कण-स्वभावान्, while Ck says आकुर्वतीनामकं नघन्तरन्, which, from the context, seems to be a more reasonable explanation.

10 पार्वतीयैस्तुरंगमैः, horses from hills. They are both swift and sturdy, and swim the streams comfortably.

14 सप्तरात्रोपितः पथि. The journey of Bharata from Rājagṛha to Ayodhyā required seven nightly halts.

66

2 उत्पत्ता, jumped from her golden seat to welcome her son. She, however, does not reveal to Bharata the news of Daśaratha's death but talks on other matters.

14 अज्ञानन्तं प्रजानन्ती. To Bharata who was ignorant of his father's death which Kaikeyī knew so well.

67

Note the sequence of stanzas in NR which does not appear to me to be natural.

7 मातृरूपे ममाभिन्ने. You are my enemy in the form of a mother.

13 कौसल्यायात्मसंभवम् = कौसल्यायाः आत्मसंभवम्, a case of double saṃdhi after elision of visarga. All southern commentators explain this feature in a similar way. There are hundreds of such instances in the language of the Epics. Gs, among our MSS., changes the above reading to कौसल्यायास्तनूद्भवम् to bring it in line with Pāṇini's rules.

14 Compare: अङ्गादङ्गात्संभवसि हृदयादभिजायसे.

15-24 Śatapatha Br. 14.9.4.8. A short episode on a mother's love to a son.

29 शचीपते: केतुरिवोत्सवक्ष्ये. The Indradhvaja is honoured during the festival, but when it is over, it is thrown on the ground and even insulted by boys.

69

1, 1771*, 1772*. These two * passages, found in the MSS. of NR and SR, do not agree in contents and hence are relegated to the Crit. App.

14 कृता शास्त्रानुगा बुद्धिः etc. Cg : कौसल्यया स्वस्मिन्नारोपितं दोषं परिहर्तुं शपथवाक्यान्त्याह—कृतेत्यादिना । आर्यः रामः । यस्यानुमते संमतौ सत्यां गतः, तस्य शास्त्रानुगा कृता बुद्धिः गुरुणा विधिनिषेधबोधक-शास्त्रानुसारित्वेन सुशिक्षिता बुद्धिः । कदाचन मा भूदिति संवन्धः । यद्यह-मार्थप्रवासनेऽनुमन्तास्मि, तर्हि ह्यतिस्मृतिज्ञानात्प्रच्युतो भूयासमित्यर्थः ।... अत्र शपथव्याजेन धर्मविशेषाश्च शिक्षयन्ते मुनिनेति बोध्यम् । अत्र च सत्पुरुषविषयापराधे शास्त्रज्ञानभ्रंशो भवतीति सूचितम् ।

71

2 वास्तिकं वस्तानां छागानां समूहः.

5 शोधनार्थमुपागतः. Bharata who had gone to the burning ground to pick up the bones of Daśaratha (and thereby to clear the burning ground). Cg : शोधनार्थं स्पलशोधनार्थम् । अस्थिसंचयनार्थमित्यर्थः ।

15 प्रवारयसि. Cg : एषामभरणानि किं तवेष्टं (तद्) गृह्णाण प्रकर्षेण स्वयं ग्राहयसि तत्प्रवारणम्.

22 श्रीणि द्वंद्वानि. Cg : अशनायापिपासे शोकमोहौ जरामृत्यु इति श्रीणि द्वंद्वानि.

72

5-23 The episode of Mantharā chastised by Śatrughna is narrated here. Bharata's view is that he should have punished not only Mantharā, but Kaikeyī also. If he would do so, Rāma would not even speak to him. Hence he advises Śatrughna to let her off.

73

3 संगत्या नापराप्नोति. Even though there is no king, it is our good luck (संगतिः = दैवयोगः) that there is no disorder in the country. Cg : नापराप्नोति राज्यस्य जन-जातमन्योन्यं न द्रुहति.

12 मातृगन्धिनीम्. Cg : केवलमातृगन्धिदेशम्, लेशमात्रमातृ-आवामिति वा.

74

5 स्ववारं समास्थाय, in their turn.

75

1 नान्दीमुखी रात्रिम्, the night which marked Bharata's effort to start on a journey to bring Rāma back to Ayodhyā. Cg : रामानयनाभ्युदययुक्तम् । यदा । शोकविगमाय कृताभ्युदयम्.

6 नौरिवाकर्णिका, a boat without a pilot or कर्णधार.

76

1 प्रग्रहाम्, well-controlled. Cg : नियमवतीम् । यदा । शुकबृहस्पत्यादिप्रकृष्टग्रहयुक्तम् । तदा निशाविशेषणमेतत्. Ct : प्रकृष्टै-र्वसिष्ठादिभिर्ग्रहः परिग्रहोऽधिष्ठानं यस्याम् ! निशापक्षे गुर्वादिग्रहवतीम्.

77

6 रामानयनसंहृष्टः. Note that among Rāma's mothers who join the party there is also Kaikeyī, as she has now realised her mistake.

12-15 We get here a list of trades and professions known to the age of Vālmiki. A Buddhist counterpart will be found in Dīgha Nikāya 2. The list in NR is enlarged still further in 1905*.

20 अभिप्रायेण सर्वशः. Bharata, on his arrival on the bank of the Gaṅgā, asks his ministers to camp there, according to the wish of each group. Compare : छन्देन स्वेन स्वेन पृथक्पृथक्.

78

3 कोविदारध्वजः. The flag or banner of Bharata had an emblem of Kovidāra tree. The commentators do not seem to be kindly to Bharata, and they seem to put into the mouth of Guha that this tree is an emblem of wickedness. In fact, Guha thought that Bharata had come there to punish the fishermen or that he was pursuing Rāma to kill him. So he asked his men to be ready to fight with Bharata and his army, if necessary.

15 निष्कृतश्चैव देशोऽयम्, this region under my command is like a garden around your own home. Guha asks Bharata to stay there and be at home comfortably at night, and then to cross the river next morning.

7 कच्चिन्न दुष्टो व्रजसि रामस्दाहृष्टकर्मणः. Guha hopes that Bharata is not marching against Rāma with evil intentions as the army accompanying him appears to indicate.

9 मा भूत्स काले etc. Bharata assures Guha of his good intentions, saying that his elder brother is like his father.

81

17 औपवासं = उपवासम्. Rāma observed a sort of fast that day and lived on water that night.

84

7 न राजानमुदाहरत्. Note here that the object of Bharadvāja, not purposely mentioning Daśaratha's death, is to ascertain Bharata's intention in moving with his army in the direction of Rāma.

85

11-18 Bharadvāja invoked the aid of Viśvakarman for according hospitality to Bharata. The objects provided include food and drink, wines and amusements, and entertainments of all kind.

35-36 Bharata was provided with a royal seat, but he did not use it; on the contrary, he offered his homage to the seat as if Rāma was occupying it, and himself occupied the seat meant for a minister or an associate. Note the Dative case रामाय which is to be construed with अभिप्रणम्य.

62 निष्ठानवरसंचयैः, with plentiful and excellent condiments (निष्ठान).

86

10 अर्धद्वितीयेषु योजनेषु चित्रकूटः. This gives exactly the same distance mentioned before, viz., ten Krosās or about 20 miles from Prayāga. To the north of the mount flowed the river Mandākinī. The direction of the mount is mentioned as south (दक्षिणेन) and south-east (सह्यदक्षिण).

28 Bharadvāja advises Bharata not to accuse Kaikeyī as her behaviour in putting Rāma into exile would end well, probably suggesting the death of Rāvaṇa.

33 यानप्रवेक्षैः = यानोत्तमैः.

88

This Sarga describes the beauties of Citrakūṭa. Rāma points them out to Sītā and concludes that he would spend happily the entire period of exile in her and Lakṣmaṇa's company, observing duties of a pious life as led by good men.

89

15 Rāma asks Sītā to regard the wild animals as citizens, the mount Citrakūṭa as the city of Ayodhyā, and the river Mandākinī as the Sarayū, so that she should not feel that she is staying in the forest.

19 App: I (No. 26).—After this stanza, the MSS. of NR including M<sub>1</sub> insert a long passage of 122 lines, impropriety of which has been fully discussed in the Introduction. It has been pointed out there that the passage consists of two parts, part one of 66 lines and part two of the remaining lines. Both these parts seem to be very old, the first going back to the age of Bhavabhūti (8th century A.D.) and the second to the age of Kālidāsa (5th century). Bhavabhūti actually quotes a stanza or two from part one of this passage, and Kālidāsa in his poem Raghuvamśa (12.21-23) refers to the Kāka episode. Though there is no trace of the Kāka episode in Ayodhyā in T G M<sub>1-3</sub>, which I consider to be the purest SR, the story is referred to in the Vulgate, 5.67, in the Lahore edition in 5.66 and in Gorresio's edition in 5.63, and is used as an abhijñāna by Sītā in her message to Rāma. Thus, all the printed editions agree in retaining the incident in the Sundarākāṇḍa. What would be the position of this episode in our critical text is yet to be seen. I, however, do not see any reason to change my views as expressed in the Introduction. The reason why I eschewed it from the Ayodhyākāṇḍa is that it is not found in SR in the Ayodhyākāṇḍa. If our MSS. have this incident in the Sundarākāṇḍa, my explanation is that NR referred to it in the Ayodhyākāṇḍa in anticipation. The exclusion of this passage is justified from the point of view of textual criticism.

90

14, 16 The kovidāradhvaja was a special and exclusive banner of Bharata, having the emblem of an exuberant (विटपिन्) Kovidāra tree. If Rāma and Lakṣmaṇa fight with Bharata's army and capture the banner, it would be regarded as the defeat of Bharata.

18 अरिर्भरतः. Lakṣmaṇa calls Bharata to be an enemy and regards him as worthy of being killed.

21 कलुषेणाद्य महता मेदिनी परिमुच्यताम्, Let the earth be cleared of a great evil, viz., Kaikeyī and her son Bharata.

91

5 अहं ह्यप्रियमुक्तः स्यां भरतस्याप्रिये कृते. Rāma is trying to pacify Lakṣmaṇa, pointing out to him to mention a single occasion on which Bharata ever displeased him, and concluding he says that if Lakṣmaṇa speaks a single unpleasant word to Bharata, Rāma would regard it as an offence against himself. After this argument, Lakṣmaṇa was put to shame and looked small (प्रविचेष्टेव स्वानि गात्राणि लब्धया).

16 Read after गजकुला in the Critical Apparatus:—After 16, S<sub>1</sub> N̄ B D<sub>1</sub> M<sub>1</sub> read 2.92.1.

9 अमिज्ञानकृतः पन्था विकाले गन्तुमिच्छता. Lakṣmaṇa seems to have placed marks by fastening some pieces of cloth or bark on tree-tops by way of indication of the path leading to their huts, by night.

36 पादावप्राप्य. On seeing Rāma, Bharata was so overpowered with grief that he ran to touch the feet of Rāma, but the force of his grief was so great that he actually fell down before reaching Rāma's feet.

3 दुष्प्रतीकम्. Cg : वैवर्ण्यादिना दुर्विज्ञेयावयवम्; Ct : दुष्प्रतीकमिति भरतविशेषणं वनविशेषणं वा । आद्ये काश्यवैवर्ण्यादिना दुर्विज्ञेयाकारम्, वनमपि भीषणतया ।

2134*. SR first puts into the mouth of Rāma a question suspecting Daśaratha's death, and, without waiting for Bharata's reply to that question, goes on firing question after question how he is ruling his newly acquired state; whether he observes rules laid down for the guidance of a good king. To me, the entire set of stanzas beginning with कञ्चित् except the first, is out of place, and introduced to show that Vālmiki knew well the science of polity. Compare, in this context, Mbh. 2.5.7-99, where the questions put to newly enthroned Yudhiṣṭhira by Nārada who visited him have a sense of propriety in the context. These questions there cover some 93 stanzas in the constituted text and about 100 or more in the Vulgate. Our Critical Text contains just 56 stanzas against 73 in the Vulgate and a few less in Gorresio. Professor Edgerton has given a note in his Addenda et corrigenda, to Sabhāparvan pp. 489-491. He says there that about 37 stanzas of Rāmāyaṇa have their parallels in the MBh. 2.5. I think there is clearly an imitation here of the MBh., where the questions are justified on more than one ground, while there is a good deal of absurdity in them in the Rāmāyaṇa on emotional ground. The question put in stanza 3 is just the question to be put to Bharata, and had Rāma waited for a few moments before he put the other questions, the situation would have become clear to Rāma that Bharata had not accepted the Kingship. But without waiting for a reply to the first question, Rāma fires on his questions making Bharata a silent and bewildered listener. We may have been justified in ignoring them altogether, but our MSS. authorities are uniform in keeping at least 56 of the stanzas.

This sarga and the following 96th sarga are read in a number of MSS. after sarga 97 of the Critical Text. That order of the text is not correct and does not correctly represent the chronology of events as has been pointed out by Govindarāja. Maheśvaratīrtha seems to be the champion of that order of sargas and Govindarāja has criticised his views. A part of Cg is given in the Critical Apparatus. I am citing here the remaining part :

ननु आर्यं तातः परित्यज्य कृत्वा कर्म सुदुष्करम् ।

2 शाश्वतोऽयं सदा धर्मः स्थितोऽस्मात् नर्यभ. Bharata points out to Rāma that it is an eternal law with the race of Ikṣvāku that so long as the eldest son is living, he should succeed his father and no younger son should be made a king. Compare in this context, what Vasiṣṭha says in 2.102.30.

इक्ष्वाकूणां हि सर्वेषां राजा भवति पूर्वजः ।

पूर्वजे नावरः पुत्रो ज्येष्ठो राज्येऽभिषिच्यते ॥

26 तत = हे तात. Some MSS. and even printed editions put figure 3 after तत to indicate that the second vowel of the word is a phula. The word तत is misunderstood and hence a wide variety of readings has come in.

31 यदन्नः पुरयो भवति तदन्नास्तस्य देवताः, gives Rāma's explanation why he offers नीवारविष्णु as a पिण्ड to his father.

21 एवं ह्रस्वा महाराजो विभागं लोकसंनिधौ. Rāma points out to Bharata, "our father divided patrimony in the manner that you should rule in Ayodhyā and I should live in the forest." This division of patrimony, once made, cannot be undone, following the well-known legal maxim: सङ्कटं नो निपतति (Manu 9.47).

98

4 तद्दामि त्वैवाहं. Bharata says to Rāma that the kingdom was no doubt given to him by their father; but now he gives it to Rāma which he should accept.

99

3-4 Rāma points out to Bharata that Daśaratha made a promise to Kaikeyī's father at the time of marriage that kingdom to her son would be the dowry. Daśaratha also gave to Kaikeyī two boons, Kingdom to Bharata and exile to Rāma. He further says to Bharata that they both should honour the pledges of their parents.

1 धर्मपितम्, far away from the accepted law. Jābāli here takes the stand of an athiest or Laukāyatika and argues that Rāma should go to Ayodhyā and rule there. Jābāli is made here the champion of the Lokāyata school, and advocates the philosophy of that school, the object being to persuade Rāma to go back to Ayodhyā.

16 2241*. Note that the contents of this * passage have no uniform location in the MSS.. Note particularly lines 13-16 which make an unjustifiable reference to Buddha calling him a thief. The absurdity of this passage is quite plain on the surface, but, it must be admitted, it is at least as old as Uḍāri (earlier than 1250 A.D.). The composer of this stanza confounds Buddha and Cārvāka. In the first place, Buddha is not a Laukāyatika or Nāstika, and there are no points of agreement between their views. It must, at the same time, be noted that the tenets of the Lokāyata school are as old as humanity itself; but Buddhism has a history and came into existence in the 6th century B.C. To make any reference to Buddha and his philosophy is an anachronism because Jābāli, Rāma's senior, uses his name; further, Vālmiki also is chronologically older than Buddha. To call Buddha a thief indicates only a hatred on the part of the composer in a composition characterised by literary chastity. The spurious character of this passage requires no further comments. It is clearly smuggled into Vālmiki's text by one who disliked and misunderstood Buddha's teachings. The NE version has no trace of this passage.

The genealogy of Ikṣvāku Kings which appears here may be compared with one which appears in the Bālakāṇḍa, 1.69.17-30 and also with that in 1.1274*. If we examine the Rāmāyaṇa genealogy of the solar race, we find some discrepancies. The chronology as given in the Constituted Text of the Bālakāṇḍa and that given in the Ayodhyākāṇḍa do not show complete agreement. Here I may point out particularly the name of Yayāti which figures in Bāla but not in Ayodhyā. In fact, this name of Yayāti among kings of the solar race looks strange as has been pointed out by Dr. A. D. Pusalkar in his article "Genealogy of the Solar Dynasty in the Purāṇas and the Rāmāyaṇa: A study," appearing in Purāṇa, IV. pp. 23-33.

15 Bharata wanted to go on hunger-strike or Prāyopaveśana, and asked Sumantra to spread the darbha grass on the ground, and as Sumantra was hesitating, himself started to spread it on the ground. Rāma then tells him that as a Kṣatriya he cannot go on hunger-strike. Bharata then appeals to the public to prevail upon Rāma to go back to Ayodhyā, but they declined to do so, as in their opinion Rāma's stand to obey his father was right.

29 उपधिर्न मया कार्यो वनवासे जुगुप्सितः, I cannot bypass the father's word that I should stay in the forest under any pretext (उपधि) because I detest such a thing. He, however, adds that the period of exile is fixed at fourteen years, and agrees that he would later on return to Ayodhyā and rule along with Bharata.

104

21-22 Bharata now asks Rāma to do him a favour to put his feet on the sandals bedecked with gold, and give them to him. Rāma does this, and thereupon Bharata tells the people that these sandals of Rāma would henceforth look to the welfare of the world. After receiving these sandals from Rāma, Bharata places them on the head of an elephant, and asks his party to return to Ayodhyā.

105

12 This stanza states that Vasiṣṭha suggested to Rāma to give his sandals to Bharata, while in 2.104.20 it is Bharata who made that proposal to Rāma. Perhaps Vasiṣṭha might have suggested that course to Bharata.

107

In NR, the Ayodhyākāṇḍa ends with this sarga. D1, in fact, has an additional passage given in App. I (No. 31) and covering two sargas narrating the abhiṣeka of the sandals followed by a phalaśruti. Note that this additional passage is exclusive to this MS., and is not traced to any other MS. so far discovered.

108

This sarga and the three following are found as part of the Aranyakāṇḍa in NR. I have explained in my Introduction, p. XX the reasons for taking these over here in Ayodhyā.

25 The phrase रामः संसाध्य तृषिगणमनुगमनादेशात्तस्मात् is very clumsy in construction and means that Rāma agreed that the sages wanted to leave Citrakūṭa and go elsewhere for a right reason, viz., the region was being infested by demons. सम्यक्प्रीतैस्तेरनुमतः is another difficult and clumsy phrase. NR uses the right word समादिष्टः while अनुमतः is awkward.

26 This stanza also is somewhat uncouth. The meaning is that after the departure of ascetics, Rāma did not leave his hut even for a moment; for, these ascetics who were busy in observing the saintly vows, were always close associates of Rāma.

109

9-12 Anasūyā, the wife of Atri, was a lady who had acquired miraculous powers by penance. When for ten years the world suffered from the effects of a severe famine, she produced fruits and roots, and made the river Gaṅgā to flow; she also prolonged a night for ten days for the benefit of gods.

110

15 किं ते करवाणि, what shall I do for you? To this question, Sītā replies by saying that all is done by her grace, and nothing remains to be done (कृतमित्यन्वयीत्).

18 असंछिद्यं नित्यमेव भविष्यति. The cosmetic preparations and clothes which Anasūyā gave to Sītā had the property of their being always fresh and that they would never be worn out (असंछिद्यं and नित्यम्).

26-50 These stanzas contain a narration of Sītā's svayaṁvara. The only point to be noted is that the bow, according to SR, belonged to Varuṇa, while according to some MSS. of the NE version, it belonged to Śaṁkara (cf. 2392*).

111

17 अमिषिच्य is to be construed with हुताग्निं, the construction is somewhat irregular.

19 The ascetics pointed out to Rāma two paths, one leading to the safer portion of the forest by which they used to go to bring fruits, while the other led to a difficult and uncomfortable part of Daṇḍakāraṇya.
